The New Army Establishment

THE QUESTION OF LAWS

[illegible] Two [illegible] systems of army organization [illegible] each has obvious advantages [illegible] great war in European countries [illegible] strenuous advocates in our [illegible]

[illegible] in the cadre or skeleton system [illegible] sufficiently indicates [illegible] further description [illegible] means it affords for instantly [illegible] small army to a great one without impairing its efficiency [illegible] mould [illegible] men The other is the system [illegible] on the admixture of certain number of officers to a [illegible] of men just as in a complete [illegible] a certain ratio of numbers [illegible] the arms of the service This system is based on the military unit, and [illegible] therefrom is recommended usually as being perfect as far as it goes and as being the most economical, because the most efficient in proportion to its size, at any given moment

The time worn contest over these two systems is again waged in Congress. We had almost pronounced it an interminable contest The truth is that both methods are good It is like the old theological dispute regarding 'faith' and 'works' and if we could get in some way a happy compound of the cadre and the small army, we should be as unfortunate as a religious sect that unites faith and works in just proportions

The plan of 'consolidating' bureaus is, in one sense a sort of cadre organization Suppose for example that the new 'Department of Supply' be created (in accordance with the testimony delivered last week before [illegible] committee) to embrace the present Quartermaster Commissary and Pay Departments It is clear that the duties of these Departments will be kept distinct and the requisitions vouchers and so forth, be separately prepared and filed In other words, we shall have just as before, trained officials, accustomed to their distinct lines of work, and in the contingency of war it would be the affair of a moment to analyze and separate the 'Department of Supply' into its component parts The same is true of the Ordnance and Artillery and in general, of all the proposed bureau 'consolidations' Meanwhile the absurdity of keeping up such an enormous clerical force—for that is about all it amounts to—with so small an army in active and garrison service, is very manifest

We may take it for granted that about this part of the army reduction—namely, the consolidation of Washington Bureaus—there will be little dispute With a small house, nobody wants a gigantic porch Moreover, with the reduction of the force by a third, if it is contemplated to cut down the infantry to that extent) the bureau work will become very slight. If we are to spend only so much on the army as the proposed reduction of the Appropriation bills will warrant, we must contrive to let as much of it go beyond the Bureaus and Staff Departments as possible

Turning now to the regiments themselves, we may admit all that can be said of the excellence of the cadre system, that it gives us a large body of skillful and experienced officers that it furnishes the sketch which it would be easy to fill in with body—the skeleton of a great army

But the trouble is simply this that our present object is economy and so disproportionate is the pay of officers and men that to cut off a few thousand of the latter and keep all the former would be saving to the sprigs not to let go at the bung

Moreover there is at present in civil life a hundred-fold larger body of trained officers both of the volunteer and regular army—than ever before Hence it is idle for the sake of saving good material to make a skeleton organization, when at the first call of the country ten thousand good swords will be offered to lead her troops. The country we repeat is full of officers of all grades educated and experienced to a degree which armies officers in ten years of peace could not attain

Experience finally shows that so far from retaining the army the general rule with officers is to quit it after brief service The outbreak of the rebellion found a great part of our men fame as regular officers, including Grant and Sherman themselves in business life Hence not only can we count on our best soldiers going back to the army in time of war but it is clear that with or without a cadre organization we cannot hope to retain even a majority of them in the dull routine of service in time of peace

We may accordingly hope that the advocates of bringing the infantry force down no more than 33½ per cent. will agree to cut down the force in a body whether by absorption or otherwise and let the reduction include officers as well as men

IS THERE ANY NAVIGABLE STREAMS—The House committee on Roads and Canals have examined General Humphreys Chief of the Engineer Corps and General Rodman U S A relative to the bridges over the Ohio [illegible] stating that said bridges shall be [illegible] as not to interfere with navigation The only [illegible] object relates to the bridge [illegible] three spans The Senate at the last [illegible] bridges [illegible] and the House [illegible] considering a substitute [illegible]

SUPREME COURT—Two judicial terms expire in the Supreme Court this year and two vacancies are to be filled in the election of October next The two Judges will be elected will hold their offices for the term of ten years from the first day of January next

[illegible] March 18—In the House to-day the bill for the disestablishment of the Irish Church came up for a second reading

It was argued that the connection between Church and State was necessary the former rendered the State religious arresting it with the highest authority The scheme is likely to destroy religious freedom and toleration and was a complete violation of the rights of corporate property being intimately connected with acts which solemnize marriage If there such acts had been followed by civil wars become thing worse Confiscation only enriched landowners The struggle of Ireland was here connection with England A majority of the Irish people were discontented and the settlement of the Church question would be insufficient to quiet their discontent The land question required settlement of debate This scheme was complicated and delusive The present engagements of the Government with the holders of vested interests ought to be paid as regularly and promptly as dividends If those engagements were compromised there could be no security against spoliation The proposal grant Maynooth College was directly in opposition to the preamble of the bill

It was deprecated the course of the present Government antagonistic to the former policy of the Whig party which was ever liberal and religious freedom He expressed the belief that the bill was most dangerous to the country but he felt that he could depend on Providence and the patriotism of Parliament He then moved the bill be read a second time six months from to day

WEEKLY REVIEW.

PORTLAND, March 22, 1869

New York Gold quotation, 131.

Legal Tenders are 77¼@77¾.

Money has been unusually tight this month, owing partly to the slow payments of bills by the Willamette Valley merchants, and the suspension of trade with eastern Oregon.

New York Produce Market—Wheat dull and nominal $1 60@1 65

Liverpool—Wheat quoted at 9s 10d—a decline 5d since last report

San Francisco Market—Flour—demand quiet at the following rates: City brands, superfine, $4 37½@4 62½; extra, $5 37@5 50.

Wheat—fair, $1 59; choice, $1 65; common to fair milling, $1 45@1 55, and fair to choice at $1 55@1 60 for shipping; good to choice, in lots, $1 60@1 65. Barley—dull at $1 00@2 10 for feed and $2 10@2 20 for small lots. Oats—Oregon, $2 05@2 15. California, at $1 75@2 15 per 100 lbs.

Portland market unchanged for all leading articles. Lard is a little higher and in moderate demand. Butter and eggs are plentier and declining in prices. Receipts of produce for the week, liberal. The shipments, including departures during the week and the amounts put into vessels yet in port, will aggregate large figures

Merchandise market—remain without change. Sugars are somewhat firmer. In dry goods there is a perceptible improvement—orders coming in more freely and for more general assortments. Agricultural goods and garden seeds are becoming more active.

HOW THE WORK IS STOPPED.—Bro. Ireland of the Enterprise, incited thereto by the Commercial's sick and bull story about the stoppage of work on the East Side Railroad, visited "No 2," and other points on the line of the road, the other day. He says the mill is still running, the hands being entirely unconscious of the fact that they have been discharged, and is cutting at the rate of four miles per week. "Four fine ox teams, of three yoke each, are continually employed hauling logs to the mill, and the timber is convenient as possible, and yet they cannot crowd the log-way. About fifty men are at work in different capacities, and the mill turns out a thousand feet of lumber per day for each man employed, including the cook and his assistants, and an occasional spy sent to look at it by the West Side road. The smaller saws are run by another engine of great power, and we call attention to the fact that the mill averages 50,000 feet for every 11 hours run. Everything is kept in splendid order; the stables are clean and comfortable, and feed remarkably abundant, so are supplies and provisions and if Ben. Holladay has stopped the mill, he fortunately hasn't stopped sending grub to it." Of the work near the Clackamas the Enterprise says: "As we neared the Clackamas on our return, we caught a glimpse of the lands through the thick [illegible], and doubtful whether Price's army had taken Clackamas county at this late day we sent our friend out as a scout, and he brought back to our ark, as an olive branch of peace, the news that Wm H. Anderson—superintendent of the contract, with a party of Holladay's "discharged" mercenaries were undermining some man's land. So we hitched our horse to a fence and went to see what conspiracy William was engaged in, and found that he was laying foundations for trouble-work over a ravine, and completing a deep cut adjoining, by the aid of the aforesaid party of mercenaries. [illegible] out of personal regard for Anderson we didn't show him the Commercial that told of his "discharge," and judging from the looks of the party and provisions, we doubt if any of them knew they had been "discharged" or were about to be. We beg to inform our readers that the railroad work goes bravely on."

VANCOUVER ITEMS.—The subjoined items are from the Register of Saturday: The Secretary of the Clark Co. A. & M. [illegible] and Mechanical Society informs the Executive Committee of the Society that he has received from the Department of Agriculture the following seeds, to-wit: White Shonen Oats (a new variety); Saxonian Barley (a new variety, excellent for brewing); Probsteier Barley (a new variety, excellent for feed). The whole imported from Hamburg.....Mr. McIrvin informs us there are a [illegible] now settlers coming in, and taking claims in the [illegible]. There is scarcely a day passes, but strange [illegible] in Vancouver for the purpose of taking up [illegible] understand supplies are now shipped from [illegible] Washington Territory for the Commissary [illegible]ria.....In the high wind of Monday [illegible] the bank of the Columbia were blown [illegible]. The Quartermaster's Department of [illegible]ar the charge of Capt. Craig. Mr [illegible] Boutelle are his clerks. The pupils of the Seminary turned out to [illegible]t on Monday. The fence round Mrs Hines' dwelling house being in a blaze, the building was [illegible]nated by their timely exertions..... [illegible] is furnished with Walla Walla flour, shipped by the way of San Francisco. Direct communication with [illegible] of the Territory is very much needed.....The [illegible] in this vicinity have done great damage to fences, etc. Judge Petrain's barn came near being burnt down [illegible] and was only saved by much exertion from destruction. The wind, too, has blown down houses and moved buildings and played smash generally.

[illegible] vs. Paul Oberheim; set for trial on the 7th of May next.

FROM OREGON CITY.—We clip the subjoined items from the [illegible]ns of Saturday: Circuit Court, W. W. Upton, [illegible]ng, is yet in session in this county, and will [illegible] be obliged to continue for a week or so.....John W. Lewis, of this city, has purchased a more eligible site for [illegible]facturing establishment, west of Main street, and proposes to erect a large shop for the manufacture of Agricultural implements. Mr. Lewis is one of the practical men of Oregon.....Mr. J. L. Barlow, of this city has [illegible]ed the contract to furnish the Oregon City Fire Department with hose carts, 800 feet of hose, and trucks, hooks and ladders. Doc. is just the man to push things, and it is expected that he will have these equipments here within 40 days. Mr. David Smith will make all the hose carts and ladder trucks. The hose will come from New York City.....The Oregon City Woolen Mills will begin operations on the 1st of next month. The mills have been generally fitted up, and the company have every confidence that they are now better qualified than ever before to make a good article of woolen goods. A [illegible]n named Richard Woodcock was very badly injured at Cattlingville one day last week, from being run over by a horse at full speed, the animal striking him a [illegible] blow with its breast.

GOOD PROSPECTS IN THE INTERIOR.—The Unionist says: "It was understood that the land and fields in the country generally were needing rain, and that unless it came there would very likely be short crops at the next harvest; but in this supposition we now find that we were in error. It was only the hill lands and the low sandy river bottoms that were in any way suffering from the effects of a drouth. The great body of the grain growing country which in general has a clay sub-soil, was never in better fix than before the rain. During the winter we did not have any of those hard-pelting rains that softened the ground so that it runs together like putty, and plows up in the spring in great clods. All manner of land break up this spring as mellow as an ash heap. We learn from farmers that the fall sowing of wheat never promised better for an abundant harvest. Old [illegible] is to say that in the spring of 1847 there was little or no rain after this time, yet the main crops were finally good."

UNDER PRESSURE IN CALIFORNIA.—We clip the following from the Times of the 10th: "The gentle shower of rain which fell on Friday evening and during a portion of Saturday, were succeeded yesterday by a day of remarkably [illegible] weather. About 12 o'clock last night, the rain again commenced to fall, and has continued to descend, at times, during most of the forenoon to-day. These showers were much needed, and of course have been of great value to the growing crops. Thus far we have had upwards of 16 inches of rain, or nearly the annual average, for a period of 20 years. The cereal crops, which were already looking well, will, under the influence of the present rain, take a new start; and unless some unforeseen circumstances intervene, will show a yield unprecedented in the history of California."

DEATH OF A PRINTER.—We learn from the Unionist that H. A. J. Riley—a printer well known to most of the craft in Oregon—died at Salem last Friday. He came to Oregon in 1854, and has always since resided at Salem. The Unionist says truly of him that "he was endeared to the craft by his genial kindness, good will and generous [illegible] as much as by his sturdy truthfulness. He often sinned against himself, but never sinned against his fellow man. He leaves many a friend who will cherish his [illegible], and he leaves not an enemy who will malign him. He has gone to his rest, and all of us who knew him will shed a tear of sincere grief on his grave, bestow a word of kind act upon his widow and children."

DEATH.—Col. Hodges, U. S. A., was among the passengers by the Oriflamme, which arrived Saturday evening. The Colonel was warmly welcomed by his friends here, of whom his genial and unassuming manners had won a host while stationed at Vancouver and at this city. He will remain here some weeks.

Mr. Charles Wheatleigh, the leading actor of the Pacific coast arrived here, as passenger, also, by the Oriflamme, and will shortly enter upon an engagement at Ord's Pike Theater.

ONE PIKE THEATER.—We were not present at the theater on Saturday afternoon or evening, but we learn there was a fair audience at the matinee, and a full house in the evening to see the drama of "The Merchant of Venice." It is said the characters were severally well sustained, on both occasions.

This evening, Boucicault's great five-act drama of "[illegible]el, or the Life of an Actress," will be performed [illegible]Mrs. Bates in the character of Violet, supported by a strong cast.

DALLES AND SALT LAKE STAGE LINE.—The Mountaineer says: "Mr. John Hailey, proprietor of the Pioneer Stage Line between the Dalles and Salt Lake City, arrived in town on Sunday last. He has now at work the entire road with four horse coaches, leaving this city every morning at 2 o'clock, arriving at Umatilla on the same day. Mr. Hailey has now got the entire line in good running order, taking passengers from this city to Boise in four days, and to Salt Lake City in seven and a half days."

AN EPISCOPAL CLERGYMAN FOR SALEM.—By the steamer Oriflamme there arrived the Rev Mr Bonnell, from Philadelphia, who goes to Salem to take charge of the Parish. This gentleman comes to us well commended and we bespeak for him a cordial greeting from his future parishioners at Salem. The Rev gentleman assisted in the morning and evening service yesterday at Trinity Church, and we hear his reading and preaching much commended. He brings word that Bishop Morris will leave for Oregon April first.

ARRIVED.—The bark Jane A Falkinbury Wm Curtis Master, arrived at 12 o'clock Saturday night seven days from San Francisco. She sailed at 10 A. M. Saturday, 13th, arrived off the bar and crossed it early Thursday morning, 18th. The Okanagan towed her from Astoria.

TO FOREST GROVE AND MCMINNVILLE.—Jamison's Express will leave the American Exchange at 6 o'clock A. M. morning for Hillsboro, Forest Grove and McMinnville—to go through to-night.

SALE OF REAL ESTATE.—Mr A. B. Richardson sold at auction on Saturday afternoon, at Guardian's sale, a half lot on the corner of Taylor and Fourth streets, with a one story house, for $1,500.

THE RECENT STAMP CASES

U. S. District Court District of Oregon, Thursday, March 18, 1869.

BEFORE MATTHEW P. DEADY, JUDGE.

United States vs. Samuel Brown. Action for penalties.

This was an action brought upon the information of Leander Quivey and Lee Culpepper, against the defendant to recover penalties for the amount of $750 for selling 3 sealed boxes of sardines and one bottle of hair oil, without the same being duly stamped.

On the trial, the witnesses for the government—Quivey and Culpepper—testified positively that they bought the articles mentioned in the store of the defendant, at Dayton, in Yamhill County, on June 2, 1868, of Columbus Brown the son and agent of the defendant, and that the same were not stamped when purchased. The sardines were produced on the trial, and the boxes bore the appearance of having once been stamped about the middle of the long edge, and that the stamps had afterwards been cut off.

For the defendant, Columbus Brown testified that he sold the articles mentioned to Quivey and Culpepper, at the time and place they stated, but that to the best of his recollection and belief they were duly stamped at the time. He also testified that all the articles in the store at the time of the sale were purchased of Sneath, in Portland, and that they were stamped when put upon the shelves. That bottles of hair oil were purchased of Hodge & Case between three and four years ago. That he believed they were stamped because never get any goods of H. & C. that needed stamping. That he was in the habit of examining goods once a month with Assistant Assessor, Porter, to see if duly stamped. That he believed articles sold to Q. and C. duly stamped, but not positive of it.

T. J. Robertson, a saloon keeper, testified that he was an intimate friend of Culpepper's, and that about the first of February last, Culpepper came into his saloon on Morrison street, and plucked him one side, and told him that he had been up the country buying sardines, and when they got any with stamps on they tore them off, and that he had the dead wood on a big thing, and that Culpepper then tapped him on the side of the nose with his finger, remarking at the time to witness, "if you reveal this, or blow on me, you know your doom."

Culpepper denied positively having ever told Robertson that they took the stamps from goods in any way, or that they ever did take the stamps off any articles purchased by them.

The case was argued to the jury by Cartwright for the Government, and by Logan and Page for the defendant.

The court then charged the jury as follows:

Gentlemen of the jury: In this case the United States complains, for that the defendant, on or about July 2, 1868, sold nine boxes of sardines and six bottles of hair oil, without the same being duly stamped, whereby the defendant became indebted to the United States in the sum of $750, or $50 for each of such boxes and bottles.

The defendant answering, denies that he sold the articles mentioned without having stamps affixed to them.

This action is brought upon the Internal Revenue act as amended, July 13, 1866. So far as it is concerned, the act substantially provides, that if any person shall make, prepare and sell sardines in cans or hair oil in bottles without affixing thereto an adhesive stamp, denoting the tax imposed thereon, he shall incur a penalty of fifty dollars for every omission to affix such stamp, and any person who shall offer or expose for sale any sardines in cans or hair oil in bottles, shall be deemed the manufacturer thereof, and be subject to the duties, liabilities and penalties imposed by law in regard to the sale of such article.

This law has been deliberately enacted by the Representatives of the American people in Congress assembled, for the purpose of raising revenue to carry on the Government and to enable it to meet its obligations. The penalties imposed by the law for its violation, are intended to secure obedience to it, and prevent the dishonest dealer from escaping his just share of taxation at the expense of the honest one.

With the question of the policy or impolicy of this law, neither the court or jury have anything to do. While engaged as judges and jurors we are not law makers. But you and I are called upon to administer this law fairly and fearlessly, without regard to consequences to third persons, or our personal sympathies or opinions. The law is enacted by the whole people for the whole country, and should be uniformly administered, as to all persons and in all places.

As citizens, out of court, it is your privilege by all the means which the lawful freedom of speech and the press allows, to endeavor to procure the repeal of such laws as you think impolitic or unjust; but in the jury box your power and duty is to assist within your sphere, in the enforcement of the law, as expounded to you by the court.

As has been wisely said in the inaugural of the present Chief Magistrate, the most effectual way to procure the repeal of bad or obnoxious laws, is to rigidly enforce them.

The simple enquiry for you to make then, is this:—Did the defendant by himself or his clerk sell these articles described in the complaint, without the same being stamped as provided by law?

This is the charge against the defendant, which by his answer he denies.

The burden of proof is upon the Government to establish the fact stated in the complaint. But this is a civil action. It is therefore not necessary for the Government to establish the charge beyond a reasonable doubt, as in a criminal action. You are to weigh the evidence for and against the charge and decide for or against the defendant, according to the preponderance of it. There is no presumption that the defendant violated the law, but the contrary. Therefore, if no evidence was offered in the case, one way or the other, the defendant would be entitled to a verdict. Starting with this presumption,—take this evidence,—weigh and consider it, and find a verdict according to what you may conclude to be the preponderance of it.

In canvassing the testimony, you are the exclusive judges of the consideration and effect to be given to it. In exercising this important power you should not act rashly or arbitrarily, but deliberately and according to the dictates of reason and the teachings of experience.

Where there are apparent contradictions in the testimony, it is your duty to try and reconcile them. If after reasonable effort you cannot conscientiously do this, then you must hold fast that which you believe to be probable and true and discard the rest.

The law presumes, and you are bound to act upon that presumption, that all men, when they testify in a court of justice under the solemnity of an oath, speak the truth. That presumption of course is not conclusive, but may be overcome in many ways. As men of ordinary experience and observation, you may be satisfied from the manner of a witness, from the intrinsic improbability of his story, from the contradictions of his testimony by other witnesses whom you have reason to believe,—or from the insufficient grounds which the witness gives for his belief or statement, that he is wholly or partially unworthy of belief.

The uncontradicted testimony of one credible witness is sufficient proof of any fact in this case. The technical rule requiring two witnesses to prove a fact, as in treason or perjury, has no application in this case.

A box of sardines being unstamped when sold, the legal presumption is that it never was stamped. It is also claimed by the District Attorney, that if the stamp is not on the box when sold the penalty is incurred by the seller, whether it was previously stamped or not. But I do not think the act ought to be so construed. If no stamp be on the box at the time of sale, I repeat, the presumption is, that the article never was stamped. But the party may nevertheless, prove that it had been duly stamped, and that the stamp had come off or been removed by accident or other cause not involving any intention or design to remove it, by the person having the goods in his possession at the time. If the party makes satisfactory proof of this state of facts, then the prima facie case is overcome, and he ought not to pay the penalty imposed for selling unstamped goods. In fact the tax has been paid, but the best evidence of it, the canceled stamp on the box, has been accidentally lost or destroyed.

The state of public opinion in reference to this and similar cases now pending in this court has been alluded to in your hearing. It is not necessary, I hope, for me to say, that you have not been chosen as jurors, to merely reflect by your verdict, the public opinion upon the subject of imposing penalties upon parties for selling unstamped goods. You have taken an oath to try this case—the question of fact upon which the parties are at issue—upon the law and evidence as given you in court. With the state of public opinion you have nothing to do, nor need or should you seek to inquire upon which side is the loudest and most active clamor. Besides the so called public opinion which sometimes seeks to intrude itself upon legal controversies, at the bidding or by the procurement of interested parties, is most often ignorant or unjust and always unreliable.

As to the witnesses Quivey and Culpepper, you should consider the money interest they have in this suit. You are not to arbitrarily assume that they are unworthy of belief on this account. But it is a circumstance to be considered by you, and on account of which you are to scrutinize their testimony with care, and act upon it with caution at least. Nor are you to presume that these witnesses are unworthy of credit because they appear before you as persons giving information to the government against those who violate the laws, for the sake of a share of the penalty. If the defendant was openly selling sardines without being stamped, it was the legal right of any one to walk into his store and purchase them and then inform upon him for a share of the penalties. In all this there is no fraud or deceit except upon the part of the person selling the goods. This is what the Government claims was all that was done by these witnesses, and so far, there is nothing in their conduct to impeach their characters for truth and veracity. At the same time the position or pursuit is not free from opportunity and temptation to exaggerate and even fabricate for the sake of money or success or to gratify a grudge. On this account also you will scan the testimony of these witnesses closely and act upon it cautiously.

As to the contradiction between Culpepper and Robertson, you must determine which of them you will believe. If Culpepper stated to Robertson what the latter says he did, it is a very strong circumstance against the credibility of the former, for two reasons. First because Culpepper denies it on oath, and second because if he did tear the stamps off any boxes, it may as well have been those at any others. It may occur to you, that it is not probable that any one in the position of Culpepper if he had torn stamps off goods for the purpose of having suits brought against parties for penalties, would voluntarily seek out a third person and disclose it to him. On the other hand it may be said that Robertson testifies, that he was and still is, Culpepper's "bosom friend," and therefore might be the latter's confidant, even to that extent.

As to the testimony of Brown—he has no actual pecuniary interest in the event of the action. But he is the son of the defendant, and attended to his business when it is claimed that this violation of the law took place. His father has twice the monied interest in the action that Q. and C. have together, and under the circumstances, this interest of his father, is as likely to influence him as a witness, as if it were legally his own. Besides as to the fact, whether the articles were stamped or not, at the time they were purchased by Q. and C., his testimony is only his opinion or belief based upon facts prior in date, of which he professes to have a general knowledge. You can judge for yourselves, from the premises, whether the opinion or belief is well founded and reasonable or not, and act accordingly.

In conclusion, if you are satisfied from the testimony that the articles were sold in violation of the statute as already exhibited to you, you ought to find for the plaintiff, but if you are not so satisfied you ought to find a verdict for the defendant.

The jury thereupon retired to their room, and after an absence of half an hour returned into court and gave their verdict for the defendant.

There were three other cases tried with the same result during the week, and the above charge was substantially delivered in them all.

WALTHAM WATCHES.

The extensive use of these watches for the last fifteen years by Railway Conductors, Engineers and Expressmen, the most exacting of watch wearers, has thoroughly demonstrated the strength, steadiness, durability and accuracy of the Waltham Watch. To satisfy that class in all these respects, is to decide the question as to the real value of these timekeepers.

The superior organization and great extent of the Company's Works at Waltham, enable them to produce watches, COMBINING THE BEST AND LATEST IMPROVEMENTS, and at a price which renders competition futile, and those who buy any other watch merely pay from 25 to 50 per cent more for their watches than is necessary.

HOAGLAND'S NEW PATENT SHAFT COUPLING!

W. E. COOPER

HAS PURCHASED THE RIGHT FOR THIS County of the above Patent, and will hereafter use it in the construction of all the Vehicles manufactured at his extensive

Carriage Factory,

Corner of Second and Morrison Streets.

He respectfully refers to the following

CARD.

Having examined the New Patent Shaft Coupling, invented by H. R. Hoagland, we feel pleasure in informing the public that in our opinion it is the safest and best method of connecting shafts or tongues to all vehicles that has ever been used.

It fastens without bolt or screw, and is therefore, easily and speedily separated. It rests on Gutta Percha so as to be entirely free from the rattling sound which so often disturbs restless horses. It is easily changed so that the shafts or tongue may be detached in an instant, and is convenient, safe and secure.

It is easy to change to this style of coupling any buggy or other vehicle now in use, and with small expense. We have come to the conclusion to use this new invention ourselves and recommend its use in all cases. We consider it far superior to the Brewster Patent, heretofore considered the best in use.

MONDAY MORNING, MARCH 22, 1869.

The Stamp Cases

The discomfiture of the informers in the United States Court, last week, was so complete that the occurrence will probably discourage them and all others who care more for personal gain than for enforcing the law, from embarking in this occupation as a settled profession. Three persons were engaged in this scheme to "make a raise," and from the evidence produced at the trials it appeared that they were not particularly scrupulous about the means employed to attain their ends. One of them, Sain, made a small amount of money last year by embarking in his pursuit, and this little success whetted his appetite for more. He engaged two other persons, Quivey and Culpepper, as partners in his trade, furnished them an outfit and started them off to look out for and buy small packages, such as boxes of sardines, bottles of hair oil, and other goods of this description which the law requires to be stamped. By the bargain Sain was to have three-fifths and the others each one-fifth of the profits, the former furnishing the capital and the two latter doing the business. The active partners in the concern visited a great many places in different parts of the State and made divers purchases. Last week they went into Court full of the expectation of making an enormous thing out of their share of the penalties. But their testimony was soon impeached. It was in evidence that one of them had admitted that part of the goods were stamped when they purchased them, and that they had removed the stamps afterwards. Also, on some of the packages the marks of the stamps were plainly visible. There was additional evidence in some of the cases to show positively that the boxes had stamps on when the informers bought them. In no case did the jury, after hearing the testimony through, give any credit to the statements of the informers. This trio has accordingly failed in business with a large lot of unstamped articles on their hands.

This, let us hope, is the last attempt that will be made by men of this description to make improper use of the law as a wholesale means of obtaining money. The stamp law is proper in itself; it affords the Government an excellent and easy method of obtaining a very considerable revenue, and there is little objection among the people to complying with it. The law will be continued and enforced; there is not the smallest doubt of that. There is probably as little objection to raising a revenue in this way as by any other method of internal taxation. Any jury among us would, upon competent evidence, quickly find a verdict against a violator of the stamp law; hence it would not do to suppose that the use of stamps can now be safely discontinued. In the cases tried here last week the evidence of the informers was disproved, and no jury could believe them. The articles were stamped when they bought them. We are glad the trials resulted as they did, first, because there was no good evidence that the law had been violated; and second, because we do not want to see a class of professional informers, men of insatiable rapacity in the pursuit of their trade, and of an accommodating elasticity of conscience in swearing for gain, encouraged to grow up among us.

Some of our Democratic contemporaries are, as usual, endeavoring to make party capital out of these cases by declaiming against "Congressional tyranny," "odious Federal laws," etc. These persons think that every species of taxation for the payment of the debt created by the Government in subduing the rebellion and preserving the Union, is "tyranny," but the majority of the people look at these things more rationally, and while they regret that it was necessary to create so great a debt to preserve the nation, and while they are still indignant that the Democratic party encouraged the rebellion and thus made the debt twice as large as it otherwise would have been, they think nevertheless that this vast sum of money was well spent in rescuing the country from its perils, and therefore do not regret that the sacrifice was made.

Small Notes.

Will not some one lend the editor of the Herald a dictionary? He is very fond of the words "truculent" and "truculency," but is using them without a shadow of an idea of their meaning or etymology. He evidently supposes that they are akin to "truckle," and that they have a similar meaning to that word.

Virginia, Massachusetts and Kentucky have furnished the Speaker of the House more than half the time since the formation of the Government—Virginia having had the office fourteen years, Massachusetts ten years, and Kentucky eighteen years, making an aggregate of forty-two years out of the eighty that the Federal Government has been organized. Next to these States comes Indiana, with eight years of the Speakership, and Pennsylvania, North Carolina, and Tennessee, each with six years.

Says the San Francisco Bulletin of the 15th: "It is understood that there is now of the Pacific Railroad uncompleted, about 170 miles. The Union Pacific is finished to Ogden. The Central Pacific is finished to within 90 miles of Monument Point, or the north end of Salt Lake. To reach Monument Point, the Union Pacific has about 80 miles of track to lay. We are informed that the Central Pacific is laying three miles one day and four and a half the next; the difference being caused by an extra train of material coming forward on alternate days. It is stated that the Central has its grading completed to Monument Point.

In his communication which is published in the Unionist Mr. H. T. Levins of that paper says that his "unfortunate correspondence with the OREGONIAN was had before any paper had said a word in the matter of an extra session." Now his principal letter was written on the 30th December, 1868. Prior to that time the Unionist had been advocating a special session and the OREGONIAN opposing it. In our issue of Dec 21st we said: "The Unionist seems to be the call so frantically made by the Democrats for a special session." The facts look bad for the veracity of the paper which has been trying to "make something" out of the State printing.

Volume XVII of the unending roll of the martyred dead of the Union armies has been issued from the Quartermaster General's office, presenting a list of 13,563 soldiers who died that we might live, and are now buried in Kentucky, Indiana and Georgia. Prominent in the sad pages appear the names of the lieutenant and eleven men of the Thirty-second Regiment Indiana Volunteers, Wilich's famous command killed in the engagement at Rowlett's Station, December 17, 1861—the vignette scene of the war in Kentucky. This volume will also attract additional attention from the fact that it contains a supplemental Andersonville roll of honor.

Dishonesty of the "Official Organ"

From the Salem Unionist.
LETTER FROM MR. LEVINS.

The OREGONIAN having been driven to one of the meanest and lowest acts of perfidy in publishing private business communications in order to screen itself, and to offer some plausible excuse for its mercenary course it is proper that Mr. Levins' version of the matter should be heard.

MR. EDITOR—In justice to yourself as well as myself I beg to state that the first communication to Mr Pittock was prior to any action of the "special session" question, and the gentleman's reply was, that he would not contract with the State Printer to do the work, as he could see something more tangible than the profits of printing, adding, that if he got the contract he would like to have me superintend the work. I then wrote that there would probably be an extra session, as I confidently believed there were men so foolish as to countenance the useless waste of nearly two hundred thousand dollars out of the State, and that if he wanted the job, additional printing, in that case would amount to something more, and that if he still declined in advance to the State Printer on the contract, that I would do so myself. Accordingly I advanced $300 of hard earned money on a contract to do the printing. This was no sooner done than, as I am reliably informed, some one in the interest of Mr. Pittock offered the Public Printer $500 to resign and let the Governor appoint him. Mr P. to fill the vacancy, and thus swindle me out of my money. And this accounts for the course of the OREGONIAN in the whole matter. It has been nothing after the appointment as printer, and has consequently done some of the most disgusting toadying to the Governor in order to secure such appointment to the proprietor of that paper. On the other hand, you will bear me witness that the negotiations and communications with Mr Pittock had nothing whatever to do with the Unionist, or its course in the matter, and that I never have had or sought to have the least control whatever of your paper, and that I have no pecuniary interest whatever in the Unionist office, and my unfortunate correspondence with the proprietor of the OREGONIAN, was had without any reference to your paper or before any paper had said a word in the matter of an extra session, and the use of the material spoken of, is the job material which you will remember I had secured the use of for Mr Pittock provided he took the printing contract.

I will take this occasion to say that as soon as McPherson can get some appointment through the joint influence of Governor Woods and Mr Pittock, and the latter gets the appointment for which he is striving, there will probably be an extra session, which is most devoutly to be desired, as the young State of Oregon can ill afford to suffer such a financial panic and mal-administration, and if that is the price to be paid, to secure it, I will willingly lose all the advance I have made, and let Mr. Pittock take it.

Yours, &c., H. T. LEVINS.

It is probably well to add that Mr Levins is a young man of good habits and morals, that he served his country three years and a half as a soldier in the Union army, and was crippled for life, and is entirely dependent upon his trade as a practical printer for a sustenance for himself and family, and as the printing had previously been done by a Democrat, we took something of an interest in securing to him the contract, not knowing that the proprietor of the OREGONIAN was trying to eat him up; and we consequently promised him the use of the job material in this office if he should succeed in obtaining the contract, but as Mr. Levins truthfully says, the whole matter had no reference to the course of this paper. The letters by Mr Levins to Mr Pittock were written on blank letter heads of this office, which was purely accidental, as they were written in our counting room; hence the words "American Unionist" occur in the date line.

We have given the Unionist's article entire so that the reader may see how it looks when viewed with reference to facts which we will state here.

An insidious and dishonest attempt is made both in the above letter and the comments upon it to convey the impression that Mr Levins has nothing to do with the Unionist. The truth is, for several months he has had the sole control and management of that paper for the proprietor. He was engaged to go from Portland to Salem several months ago expressly to take charge of the paper, and he has had charge of it ever since. He has superintended its publication, managed its business and written many of its editorials (such as they are) and has been the chief instigator of all the clamor for an extra session which has been made through the medium of that paper. All these things are well known at Salem. Yet Mr. Levins now writes a communication addressed, pretendedly, to the editor of the Unionist, in which he virtually disclaims all connection with the paper, and an attempt is made to carry out the same impression in the so-called editorial remarks which accompany the letter; when there can hardly be a doubt that both the letter and the remarks accompanying it were written by Mr Levins himself. He admits that he advanced $300 on the State printing. If this is true, he advanced it to secure a job for the benefit of the Unionist office of which he has had exclusive control for the greater part of a year. This admission fully sustains the statement made by our correspondent at Salem, and shows why the "State organ" has been so exceedingly anxious for the Governor to call an extra session.

Mr. Levins says he had no sooner advanced his $300 on the printing than, as he is "reliably informed," "some one in the interest of Mr. Pittock offered the Public Printer $500 to resign and let the Governor appoint him (Mr. P.) to fill the vacancy, and thus swindle me (Mr. L.) out of the money." Now, Mr Levins has control of the columns of a newspaper, will he give the name of this "reliable informant?" By all means let us have a full disclosure of this attempt to "swindle." If the Public Printer has ever been approached by any one "in the interest of Mr. Pittock" with a bid of this sort, no doubt he (the Printer) can and will give all the information regarding it that the Unionist may desire. We entreat any party who may have any information of this kind treasured up to give it publicity without delay. Mr. Levins' story is a groundless fabrication. Mr. Pittock has never attempted to negotiate in person or through an agent for any interest in the State printing. He has not desired to have anything to do with it. The overture made by Mr. Levins last December, whereby it was attempted to bribe the OREGONIAN to join in the cry for a special session on consideration of obtaining a share in the printing, was immediately and decisively rejected. As for the assertion that there will probably be a session "as soon as McPherson can get some appointment through the joint influence of Governor Woods and Mr Pittock, and the latter gentleman gets the appointment for which he is striving," we may reply that no one connected with the OREGONIAN has attempted to get the appointment for McPherson or has been invited to use any influence in that direction, and that Mr Pittock, so far from striving to get the appointment of State Printer in case of Mr McPherson's resignation, would not accept the appointment on any terms. If an extra session is to wait for these results, the Unionist will hear the crack of doom before it sees an extra session. Further, Mr Pittock never said or [illegible] to Mr Levins anything about "obtaining the contract," or engaging Mr Levins "to superintend it," simply because Mr P. never had any idea of taking hold of it. There is nothing in the printing any way, as Mr Levins will ascertain before he gets his $300 out of it. As far as the statement that the OREGONIAN "has done some of the most disgusting toadying to the Governor to secure the appointment to the proprietor of that paper," it may be answered that [illegible] of "toadyism" with the Unionist, which it began to clamor for an extra session referred to him repeatedly in the language of flattery and adulation hoping thereby to get him to yield. This tribute of flattery no doubt came from the pen of Mr Levins for the [illegible] so far as the public [illegible] and [illegible] the printing. The [illegible] that there would be an extra session, in the hope that there would be.

This letter of Mr Levins', of writing a letter to himself and then commenting on it as if it were the [illegible] is about equal to Mrs Malaprop's expression, like Cerberus, three gentlemen at once. The indignation that is manifested by the [illegible] published "private and confidential" communications does not move us to publish what we remember the provocation we had to make the following things public. The questions are, Are we bound to submit to the unmitigated lie," with the proof to substantiate our position in our hands, while the person who makes this odious charge relies on the privacy of letters in his own handwriting which we have in our possession, and which if published would completely exonerate us and disprove the slander of our assailant? We do not so interpret obligations which, as Mr Micawber expresses it, exist "between man and man."

From what has been stated the public will see that it is not surprising that the letters by Mr Levins to Mr Pittock were written on blank letter heads of this Unionist office. As Mr Levins is chief in the Unionist establishment, where else should he write his letters but in "our counting room?"

It may be thought that the space we have given to this matter is disproportioned to its importance, but it should be remembered that a great outcry has been made for an extra session, and it is right that the public should know what has caused the Salem paper to take the course it has pursued. It can be established by Mr Levins' own admissions that he has written many of the articles in advocacy of an extra session which have appeared in the Unionist; and as he admits that he has $300 invested in the prospect of an extra session, the whole thing is duly accounted for.

STATE ITEMS.

The "school money" in Yamhill county this year amounts to $2,200 in coin and $300 in currency. The dividend to each scholar in the county is $1 68.

The following are school statistics of Benton county: Whole number of districts, 33, of which 28 only have reported. Persons between the ages of 4 and 20 years, 1,753, 821 males and 232 females. Money appropriated—coin, $2,220 31, currency, $240 49. Amount per scholar, about $1 40.

A correspondent writes from Canyonville, March 16th: A fine shower of rain fell in this vicinity last evening, which was very much needed. Such a winter and spring as the present were never known in this section of country. What we want now is rain to insure us an abundance of grass and grain.

The Jacksonville Sentinel of the 13th says: On Monday last Dr. Overbeck was called to see a man named John Cross, who had been complaining for several days. He at once pronounced it a case of small pox and the patient was at once taken to the post house at Kanaka Flat. It is likely to prove a severe case.

From the Albany Register: A son of Dave Baldwin, Esq., living in Scio, aged about twelve years, while driving a team attached to a wagon loaded with lumber, on Friday, March 12th, was thrown from the wagon on to his head, breaking his neck and producing almost instant death. The horses had become unmanageable, and were going at full speed when the accident occurred.

From the Corvallis Gazette: The following are the names of Agricultural students in attendance upon the Corvallis College: W. H. Wilmot, Jas. P. Currin, R. M. Veatch, Jas. P. Weatherford, Ross F. Chenoweth, W. H. Chapman, Isaac W. Berry, John B. Eglin, H. D. Randle, D. L. Carroll. Three or four other appointments have been made, and the pupils are expected soon. Near one hundred scholars are registered at the Corvallis College the present term. The present session will close on Thursday, April 1st, and the next will begin April 6th.

A letter from Klamath Agency to the Jacksonville Sentinel says: A feeling of sadness prevails all hearts at the unexpected intelligence in regard to Lieut John F Small. A number of men now at Fort Klamath were long with him in the service, and shared the dangers and privations of many arduous campaigns in the fiery days of rebellion, and they can all bear testimony to his unimpeachable integrity, his generosity, his fine social powers, his love of justice, and his unfaltering courage. Since coming to Fort Klamath he made many friends who now mourn him as one of Oregon's noblest sons.

From the Jacksonville Sentinel: The Board of Commissioners have finally passed upon and audited all the bills presented against the county for supplies and services during the epidemic. After the most searching scrutiny, they allowed the aggregate sum of $5,609 08. Some of the claims were deemed exhorbitant and were greatly cut down. That of Mrs. Roundtree, who was employed as a nurse at the Hospital, at a specified sum, was cut down from $775 to $153, which was quite a difference in favor of the tax payers. The action of the Board cannot be otherwise than satisfactory and gratifying to the people of the county and there is every reason to believe that they were actuated by a strict sense of justice. The expenses of the town, separate from those of the county, will reach about $800; nearly $700 has been awarded already, and several bills have not been presented yet.

A Southern Oregon paper give the following from Fort Klamath, March 1st. The weather has been clear and pleasant all winter, at no time cold enough to be disagreeable. The ground at the Fort is bare in places where a year ago there was four or five feet snow, and the lower Agency where it was four deep fort last year, there is no snow to be seen. Beautiful speckled trout are very abundant and are easily taken. Capt. McGregor is the acknowledged champion both with hook and spear. Two horses became frightened on the Williamson river ferry boat and jumped overboard but were saved by the Indians. The Indians are much concerned on account of the weather being so mild and dry, they predict much sickness and destitution and their medicine men have advised a series of sweating and dancing to bring rain, which if having a effect on the weather, will have the effect to cure all the Indians, several having succumbed already.

DESPATCH TO THE OREGONIAN.

FROM THE NORTH.

OLYMPIA, March 20.—The Republican County Convention met at the Court House to-day for the purpose of selecting three delegates to the Territorial Convention, which is to be held at Claquato April 20th. The following persons were elected only one dissenting voice: L. P Beach, Ira Ward and J. C. Ellis, all of whom were instructed to support Mr Gerard for delegate to Congress.

The District Court will convene at this place on Monday next, March 22d, Chief Justice Hewitt, presiding.

Crop Prospects in California.

The Sacramento Union of a late date has the following:

The existing dry spell, accompanied by desiccating northerly winds, already brings complaints from the country that the grain crop is in danger, and must soon have rain or greatly suffer. That which was planted early in the season and strongly rooted before the last rains, will probably suffer little even if the drouth should continue till the equinoctial storms, but the later plantings, which waited on the January and February rains to shoot up, must turn yellow and become grievously stunted unless freshly watered. The Contra Costa Gazette and other county journals complain that a hard crust has formed on the cultivated which punches the young grain already up, and prevents that sown shortly before the rain from getting out of the ground. The season has so far been remarkably favorable to grain farmers. They had very early in the winter, just enough rain to enable them to plow and plant a very large area, and in January quite water enough fell to sprout their crops. But the dry spell which has prevailed all through the latter half of February, admonishes us that no winter can be depended on for a full crop till it is over. Should March, up to the 20th, prove as dry as the last half of February, hardly any future rains could save a large proportion of wheat sown late from failure. The fact is, California farmers will act unwisely in continuing the one drop system of agriculture for the last three or four years, owing to favorable seasons at home and good markets abroad, they have acquired considerable independence in the cultivation of wheat. But, sooner or later, they must receive a back set from drouth and a failure of the staple, and when that time comes, they should be prepared to soften its calamities by success in other branches of cultivation.

MECHANICAL PROGRESS IN CHINA.—Among the numerous evidences of the great changes that have begun in the Flowery Kingdom is the report, by the last steamer, that fresh artizans from Woolwich have been engaged at the Nanking arsenal, and that a small steamer, native owned, managed and engineered, is running from the Yangtze to Soochow, on the grand canal.

The Sacramento Reporter says: "Inasmuch as the road is built on a boe line it is thought that passengers will be delivered at Stockton in about an hour, the distance being about forty miles. There will be a lively competition with the Vallejo route.
